Reading - Review Poetry

Here is a classic poem for you to read. Does the story in this poem remind you of another story you have read before?

The Wolf and the Goslings

- 1 An old gray goose walked forth with pride, With goslings seven at her side;
- 2 A lovely yellowish-green they were, And very dear to her.
- 3 She led them to the river's brink
  To paddle their feet awhile and drink,
- 4 And there she heard a tale that made Her very soul afraid.
- 5 A neighbor gabbled the story out, How a wolf was known to be thereabout —
- 6 A great wolf whom nothing could please As well as little geese.
- 7 So, when, as usual, to the wood She went next day in search of food,
- 8 She warned them over and over, before She turned to shut the door:
- 9 "My little ones, if you hear a knock At the door, be sure and not unlock,

- 10 For the wolf will eat you, if he gets in, Feathers and bones and skin."
- 11 "You will know him by his voice so hoarse, By his paws so hairy and black and coarse."
- 12 And the goslings piped up, clear and shrill, "We'll take great care, we will."
- 13 The mother thought them wise and went To the far-off forest quite content;
- 14 But she was scarcely away, before There came a rap at the door.
- 15 "Open, open, my children dear,"
  A gruff voice cried: "your mother is here."
- 16 But the young ones answered, "No, no, no," Her voice is sweet and low;
- 17 "And you are the wolf—so go away, You can't get in, if you try all day."
- 18 He laughed to himself to hear them talk, And wished he had some chalk,
- 19 To smooth his voice to a tone like geese; So he went to the merchant's and bought a piece,
- 20 And hurried back, and rapped once more. "Open, open the door,"
- 21 "I am your mother, dears," he said. But up on the window ledge he laid,
- 22 In a careless way, his great black paw, And this the goslings saw.

- 23 "No, no," they called, "that will not do, Our mother has not black hands like you;
- 24 For you are the wolf, so go away, You can't get in today."

Do you remember from Unit 4 that a couplet is a verse in a poem? A couplet is two lines long. The last words of each line in a couplet rhyme.

Read "The Wolf and the Goslings" again. Write the rhyming words in each verse. The first one has been done for you.
