REVIEWS

"Robert Louis Stevenson's children's poetry, timeless verses that so vividly describe the world of a child's imagination, are set to music by musician/producer Ted Jacobs with a Celtic flavor and lullaby rhythms. The poems about early summer bedtime, the wind and rain, playing pirate, shadow play and dreamy times are brought gently to life by child and adult singers..." Lynne Hefley - LA Times & Parents' Choice

"...the best cd I've heard all year...this collection sets his poetry to music with such precision, it is difficult to imagine they did not sound this way in Stevenson's own head..."
Children's Magazine, Los Angeles, CA

"...a stroke of genius...the interpretations of these sixteen poems vibrate with happiness and imagination..."
The Sacramento Bee

"... this is a welcome addition to the radio disney playlist..."
John Pattnosh - Music Director/Radio Disney

"...A Child's Garden of Songs is a bloomin' triumph! ...these imaginative harmonics embrace classics for the child in us all."
Van Dyke Parks - Artist/Composer/Arranger

"This recording is a pure delight. My daughter and I share it each and every day..."
John Tesh - Composer/Musician

"...my year old triplets received this CD as a birthday gift. I was so pleasantly surprised by this CD. My babies just love it, dancing and clapping to the songs. We play it all the time and are not tired of it yet. In fact I am here today buying a copy as a baby gift..."
A. Hagman - Nordman ID

"...written expressly for children, these poems breathe life into new worlds born of a love for language. Coupled with fine arrangements on Celtic pipes and strings, this is a fertile garden of enrichment for the whole family..."
